Analyst View:

Aromatherapy is becoming more popular, and essential oils are becoming more popular, which is propelling the market forward. The market is growing due to a growing preference for natural therapy and the adoption of a healthy lifestyle. Growing demand for aromatherapy in medical applications is causing insomnia and chronic disorders among individuals, as aromatherapy provides a simple, natural, and less expensive solution to the problem, and growing awareness about the side effects of allopathic drugs is acting as an opportunistic factor for the aromatherapy diffusers market.

The high cost of essential oils, as well as their adverse effects such as allergies, irritation, and rashes, will act as a restraint on the expansion of the aromatherapy diffusers market.
